Colonialism And Homosexuality
Colonialism and Homosexuality is a thorough investigation of the connections of homosexuality and imperialism from the late 1800s - the era of 'new imperialism' - until the era of decolonization. Robert Aldrich reconstructs the context of a number of liaisons, including those of famous men such as Cecil Rhodes, E.M. Forster or André Gide, and the historical situations which produced both the Europeans and their non-Western lovers.

The ethos of the colonial world (and indeed of much European public life in the imperial age) was masculine, with women excluded, and a current of misogyny underlay European life. Colonial homosexuals, however, were not necessarily women-haters, and facile links between homosexuality and misogyny are spurious.
